5th District Group Retains Plurality Rule

Plurality nomination of candidates for congress from the fifth Georgia congressional district was retained yesterday by unanimous vote as the Democratic executive committee set rules for the September 9 primary, and Jere A. Wells, former Fulton county school superintendent, qualified for the post now held by Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Decatur.

It is generally accepted that Ramspeck will seek renomination and J. E. B. Stewart, attorney, who previously announced his intention, will become a candidate. Entrance fee was set at $500, and each candidate must pay it to Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, committee secretary, and sign a written pledge to abide by committee rules and support Democratic nominees before 2 p. m., July 4, the time for the closing of entries.

Eight of the 14 members of the committee representing the three counties—Fulton, DeKalb and Rockdale comprising the district—were present. When Judge Shepard Bryan, committee chairman, had the proposed rules read, they were adopted unanimously and without change.

Allen Clapp, attorney and member of the Citizens Club of which Wells is a member, headed a special committee of citizens representing all counties of the district in qualifying Wells. He exhibited 100 $5 bills with which to pay the fee, and Mrs. Peterson remained at her desk until copies of the required pledge could be prepared for Wells' signature.

Clapp said 764 persons have

Huge Funeral Pyre, Jap Plane, Opened 2d Stage of 'Coral Sea'

CHICAGO, June 15.—A pillar of flame and smoke—the funeral pyre of 12 Japanese airmen—opened the second stage of the epic five-day Coral Sea battle. This was one of the unforgettable sights I saw during the tense moments of this, the first of the world's fights between modern aircraft carrier forces.

It was awful, majestic and a threat of what was ahead for all of us, for the big Japanese patrol plane that burned there so fiercely in the sky and on the sea, fell right into the heart of our speeding two-carrier task force.

Our fighter planes, patrolling in pairs, found the Jap—a Kawa-

Russian Fleet Shells Nazis; Crisis Impends

By The Associated Press.

The thunder of land, sea and air battle was rolling last night across 1,500 miles of Mediterranean basin, threatening hourly to start the supreme conflict for the Middle East, in which United States, Britain and the Soviet Union all have such precious stakes.

Naval forces of the United Nations were in heavy combat against the Axis in mid-Mediterranean and Black sea, and the savage land battles in both these theaters were fast approaching the hour of climax.

United States air forces, bridging the battle gap between Suez and the Black sea, already had delivered their first punch at the Axis forces and resources in Europe's east. Moreover, the hour appeared to be approaching when American fighting men on land and sea as well would be in the battle for the land bridge which lies between Suez and Caucasus, and which yields one-seventh of the world's oil.

These interlinked battle dispatches showed the course and scope of Hitler's developing gamble for the war-making resources of the Middle East.

Black Sea: Lying off the historic battleground of the Crimean, the Russian Black sea fleet poured a cascade of shells into the German assault lines which have been battering at the powerful land fortifications of the Sevastopol naval base for 11 days.

The warships—perhaps including a battleship and several cruisers—defied massed German artillery fire and swarms of dive bombers, and their guns were reported to have torn great wounds in the massed German fortifications about the base. Sevastopol, under siege for seven months and the last Russian-held bastion in the western Black sea, still stood. Kharkov: The bloody treadmill of the Ukraine appeared to have run down again, after a German offensive which left a clear-cut decision but certainly ground out a ghastly toll of men and machines. The Germans claimed they had crossed the River Donets at all important points, wiping out the advantages which the Russian Marshal Timoshenko seized in his own offensive of prevention early this spring.

No Serious Changes. There was also the familiar Nazi claim to encirclement and annihilation, which was said, this time, to have bagged 25,000 prisoners.

The Russians, in their midnight communique, announced that 180 German tanks had been destroyed or damaged on Monday alone on the Kharkov front. They said Red army troops had repelled an attack by both armored forces and infantry.

Mid-Mediterranean: The Italian high command, in a sudden outpouring of victory claims, announced that the biggest British convoy ever sent into the Mediterranean from the Atlantic had been grievously crippled by the clouds of Italian warplanes in the 100-mile passage between Sardinia and Sicily.

Never Got Back. Then one morning early in May he came up on the deck of the aircraft carrier, ready for enemy bombers. He never got back to his quarters.

Fires broke out on the Lexington as gasoline lines deep in the ship leaked from the damages of enemy bombers. And the order was given to abandon ship.

What happened then, Ed? Did you feel as if you might never see home again? What did you think about?

"Aw, there was nothing to it,"

Hartsfield Thwarts Attempt Of Council To Oust H. H. Gibson

Mayor Refuses Demand That He Hold Election.

By HERMAN HANCOCK.

Mayor Hartsfield yesterday forestalled a "council revolution" and thwarted an effort to elect Virgil Echols, former employee of the city construction department, as superintendent of the city prison farm to succeed H. H. Gibson, whose term expires August 1.

The mayor refused to answer a summons to attend council and hold the election, and the council finally adjourned after a recess during which administration leaders bolstered their forces and forced an adjournment.

On the roll call nine voted for adjournment and seven against, according to records of City Clerk Joe L. Richardson. Those voting against the election were: Lyle, Gilman, Brewer, Reynolds, Drennon, Allen, Marler, Bell and Wilson. Those voting negative were: Bridges, Moseley, Jackson, Couch, White, Butler and Haire.

Councilman Couch took the floor early in the session asking that the mayor be called into the session to hold an election. When it was learned that Hartsfield was not in the city hall, Couch asked the city attorney if council could hold the election with the mayor pro tem, George B. Lyle, presiding.

Jack C. Savage, city attorney, said if the mayor was in the city the mayor should preside. Later, it was learned that Hartsfield had reached his office, and Couch demanded that L. Glenn Dewberry, marshal of council, tell him to attend to bring back a message from the mayor that he would not attend. Dewberry brought back the answer that the mayor was considering the matter, and council recessed to give Hartsfield time to study the issue.

As council reconvened, former state Senator G. Everett Millican was invited within the hall. When the mayor did not appear, Councilman Frank Wilson moved that council adjourn.

Echols supporters claimed enough votes to oust Gibson. When developed that Hartsfield was balking at holding the election, Councilman Paul Butler said he would ask the city attorney to prepare impeachment papers if the mayor declined to answer the council's summons. He, however, did not press the issue.

Observers at the city hall recalled that history repeated itself in the incident, citing that when the late Mayor James G. Woodward was serving he once declined to appear in council to hold an election.

Just An Incident. All this was just an incident in the broader battle picture. It happened the morning of May 7 while 76 planes from our nest were in the air speeding toward a Japanese carrier force that had been located at dawn 175 miles northeast of us. Jorgensen's feat served to ease momentarily the pre-action tension that inevitably built up among the carrier's crew when her planes were out on a fighting mission.

Our task force had drawn away from the whole fleet to us.

Will Swap 3 Left Shoes For 3 Right

Six Other Vessels Damaged in Attacks On Invasion Force

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Striking again at the Japanese, this time far north in the Aleutians, American air power has sunk at least one cruiser and damaged seven other vessels, including an aircraft carrier, it was officially disclosed tonight.

The blows were delivered against a Jap force striving desperately to break into the Western Hemisphere by conquering a few bleak islands far out in the northern Pacific.

While officials refrained from making any decisive claims, it appeared to many authorities that a third great American sea-air victory was in the making to add to those which only recently repelled the enemy, in destructive routs from Australia in the southwest Pacific and Midway Island in the mid-Pacific.

Attacks Continuing.

Breaking a three-day silence on Japan's attempt to gain a hold on the rocky islands at the tip of the Aleutian chain, a Navy communique said, and a report which came indirectly from Lieutenant General Henry H. Arnold, Army air chief, gave this accounting of Japanese losses:

Sunk—One cruiser, three cruisers, one destroyer, one gunboat and one transport. (The damage to several of these vessels was severe.)

Army Navy aircraft, hampered by fog and foul weather, are continuing their attacks, the communique said, and the indication was that more successes might be expected. So far, no American losses have been reported.

"Except for these continuing air attacks upon the enemy landing parties and their supporting naval contingents, the general situation in the Aleutian Islands appears unchanged," the Navy declared.

No Further Gains.

This statement was interpreted authoritatively to mean that no word had come through of further Japanese encroachments on Aleutian territory in addition to those reported last Friday.

It was stated at that time that a small-scale landing had been effected in Attu Island, a rocky chunk of land with a small and treacherous harbor which lies 769 nautical miles west of the base at Dutch Harbor. It was also disclosed that enemy ships had slipped into the harbor at Kiska.

But, authorities said that American aircraft had driven the landing party away from the only populated place on Attu, and had forced them to flee out of the Kiska harbor.

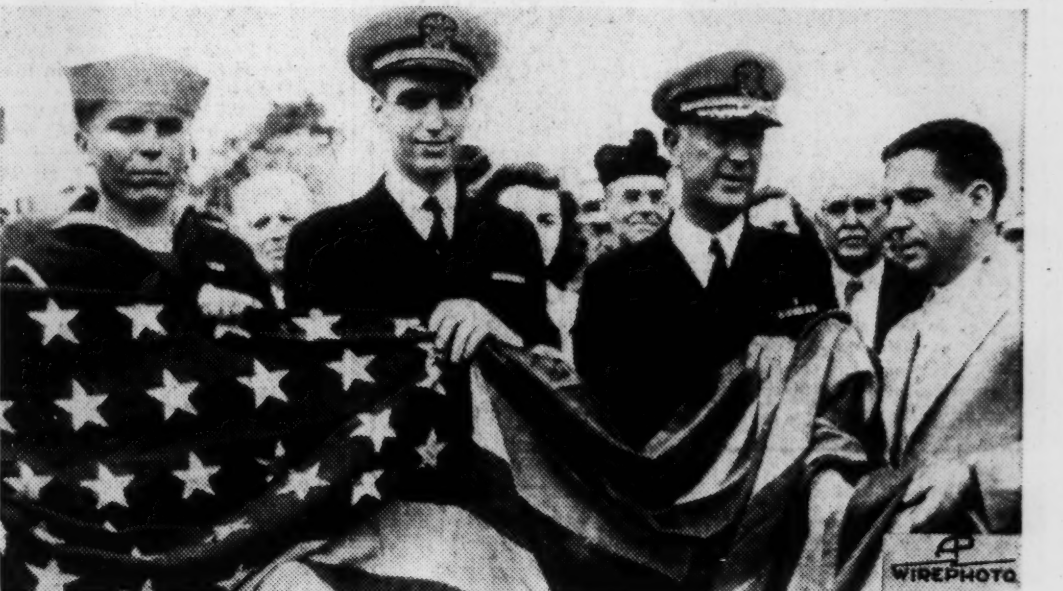

Presumably, the Japanese did not know the strength of the forces which could be brought against them in the remote section.

Annual War Output At 12 1-2 Billion Mark

WASHINGTON, June 15.—(AP) War construction now is proceeding at a rate of about $12,500,000,000 a year, the War Production Board estimated today, while non-essential civilian construction virtually has halted completely.

Further increases in building are expected to cause essential construction to top $13,500,000,000 by the year's end, or 20 per cent above the 1941 total for all construction, which set an all-time record.

U-Boats Return To Gulf, Torpedo Panamanian Ship

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Deadly Axis U-boats have crept back into the Gulf of Mexico, free from the underwater raiders for two weeks, the Navy reported last night in announcing the sinking of a large Panamanian merchant vessel.

Blasting of this ship and four others elsewhere boosted the announced sinkings in the Atlantic and adjacent waters to 270 since Pearl Harbor.

In addition the Navy authorized an announcement of the disappearance of the New Orleans freighter Miraflores, of the Standard Fruit & Steamship Company. The 2,158-ton ship sailed from Haiti February 14 for New York and has been unreported since. She carried a crew of 34.

The other four ships torpedoed were an American merchantman, a small U. S. merchant vessel, the Norwegian tanker South Africa and an unidentified craft. At least 186 seamen were rescued from these four and the Panamanian merchantman and at least nine were killed.

Only one life was lost when a submarine sank the ship in the Gulf June 11 and 58 sailors were saved. Survivors reported two quick torpedoes caused the ship to list so badly that its deck gunners were unable to fire.

After a submarine sank the small U. S. merchantman off the south coast of Cuba June 7 one of the U-boat crewmen dove into the water and picked up a life preserver to establish the identity of the victim. The torpedoing cost six lives and 27 men were rescued.

Survivors of the larger American merchant craft, sent to the bottom June 1 south of Cuba, twice out-argued would-be rescuers to wave them out of the danger area. Fifty-three men then made port in two lifeboats. Second Mate William J. McCarthy, of New York City, said both attempted rescues were made by Brazilian ships, but that the men finally convinced the two to get out of the danger zone. Two seamen were killed in the sinking.

Argentine maritime police reported the torpedoing of the 9,234-ton South Africa and said that 23 survivors refused rescue by an Argentine tanker which sighted their lifeboat off the northeast coast of South America. An official announcement said the men were given food but declined to board the passing vessel.

From an east coast Canadian port came word of the landing of 25 survivors of a ship sunk in the Atlantic. Three women were reported in the group.

Meanwhile, 13 seamen from a medium-sized freighter whose sinking was announced last Thursday landed at an eastern port and told how the submarine's crew apologized for killing some of the freighter crew. One of the U-boat's officers also told the survivors that "Germany and America should not be fighting each other." Before submerging his craft, the officer discussed the merits of American and German beer with the victims.

Argentina Warned Of Axis Blockade

BUENOS AIRES, June 15.—(AP) Germany officially informed the Argentine government today all vessels entering the newly determined North American blockade zone after June 26 would do so at their own risk.

Noticias Graficas added that Argentine merchantmen would continue trips to North America but probably would go to New Orleans pending assurances from Germany that "the fate of the fleet and the lives of the crews would not be endangered."

Colombians Rescue 26 U. S. Crewmen

BOGOTA, Colombia, June 15.—(AP) The War Ministry announced tonight that 26 survivors of a United States merchant ship were picked up early today from a lifeboat off San Andres island by a Colombian Naval vessel.

The men were carried to the military hospital at Cartagena and given clothing and medical attention.

OCD Relates What To Do In Gas Attacks

Civilians Can Escape Gassed Areas, Memorandum Says

Instructions regarding protective and remedial measures for use in gas attacks were issued here yesterday by the regional office of civilian defense "because of the possibility that gas may at some time be used by the enemy."

In a memorandum to state defense councils, Regional Director Charles H. Murchison stressed that "civilians can get out of a gassed area or get above the level of the gas where they do not need gas masks or protective clothing."

The memorandum declared that civilians "will have no unreasonable fear of this agent," if they remember the suggestions outlined. These included: "War gases stay close to the ground, for they are heavier than air. To get out of a gassed area, simply walk against the wind or go upstairs."

"Gas is irritating and annoying to the eyes, nose, lungs or to the skin, but is usually harmless if you do not become panicky but promptly leave the gas area and cleanse yourself."

Jap Columns Near Union On Vital Railway

50,000 Troops in Steady Advance Into Kiangsi, Chinese Admit

CHUNGKING, June 15.—(AP) Two powerful Japanese columns, applying a nutcracker squeeze on the ill-equipped Chinese troops in Chekiang and Kiangsi provinces had driven tonight to within 75 or 100 miles of a junction on the vital Nanchang-Hankow railway.

One column of perhaps 50,000 men, which overran northern Chekiang province south of Shanghai last month, has made steady progress into bordering Kiangsi province, a Chinese communiqué acknowledged.

"Heavy fighting is in progress on the Chekiang-Kiangsi border in the areas south of Kiangshai, southwest of Yushan, and at the outskirts of Kwangfeng," the communiqué said. Street fighting, in which both sides suffered heavy casualties, was said to be raging within Kwangfeng, which the Japanese entered Saturday night.

Another column believed to be of about equal strength has driven southeast from Nanchang Japan's Kiangsi base, at least as far as Tengpu, 100 miles from Nanchang and about the same distance from Kwangfeng.

Japs Cross River

Tonight's Chinese communiqué reported a further advance for this column. After failing Friday and Saturday in attempts to cross the river at Tengpu (Tengchiang), it said, the Japanese made their crossing Sunday and advanced several miles eastward to a point where it ran into determined Chinese and heavy fighting followed.

(The Japanese today asserted their westbound column had occupied Shangjiao, 25 miles west of Kwangfeng. If true, this would narrow the gap between the Japanese columns to less than 75 miles.)

Shangjiao, some 50 miles inside Kiangsi province, was raided by "scores of airplanes" operating in relays, the communiqué said. Several fires were set.

Much-bombed Yushan, a shambles just within Kiangsi, has fallen to the Japanese. Yushan and Shangjiao have been the most heavily bombed points in eastern China since Brigadier General James Doolittle led his United States Army planes over Tokyo and three other Japanese cities in a destructive raid April 18.

Seeking "Shangri-La"

(The Japanese apparently were striving to find and destroy the "Shangri-La" bases from which the United States planes operated.)

The main objectives of the current Japanese offensives appeared to be to sever southwest China from the rest of the nation and to protect Japan's western flank against air raids. Authorities here also have expressed belief that the Japanese are attempting to seize complete control of railways and highways along the eastern seaboard to provide a direct overland communication route from the Japanese mainland through French Indo-China and Thailand to Malaya and Singapore.

Such an achievement would go far to consolidate the sweeping Japanese conquests in her six months' war against Britain and the United States and relieve the strain on her merchant fleet.

Parents Face Unhappy Task Writing Son His Dog Is Dead

Collie Is Victim of Killing by County Policemen

By PATRICIA BRONTE.

The hearts of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Roberts, who live on Sylvan road, near East Point, this morning were heavy with grief at the task before them . . . writing their son, Louie, now away in the Army, that his dog is dead.

How Louie would receive the news that his fond 15-year-old collie, "Bob," had been slain by two Fulton county policemen yesterday afternoon could not be foretold.

Louie, a staff sergeant at Camp Sutton, N. C., "idolized his dog, according to his mother."

"When you've had a dog for 15 years," Mrs. Roberts said, "and his mother before that, he becomes like a member of the family. His mother, 'Scamp,' was as dear and precious to us as Bob was. We can't remember when we haven't had one of those collies. We wouldn't have taken anything in the world for that dog."

Heard Shots

Mrs. Roberts was working in her kitchen early yesterday afternoon when she heard the shots that announced Bob's untimely death. Rushing from the house and across the road, she found a Fulton county policeman, gun in hand, over the pathetic body, while another officer looked on. Mrs. Roberts begged for an explanation.

"The dog looked so old, anyway," replied the policeman, "we thought he'd be better off dead."

Later, Mrs. Roberts added, "What got me was the way he kept shooting at the dog after he had killed him."

Mrs. Roberts yesterday complained to East Point police about the killing.

Thought Dog Was Mad

Neighbors and friends of the family, who also were friends of "Bob," complained to officials of the Humane Society and to Chief George Mathieson, head of the Fulton county police department. Chief Mathieson last night talked to the officers, and they reported to him they thought the dog was mad.

Mrs. Stacy Hill, secretary of the Georgia Humane Society, and Mrs. Katherine Weathersby, a vice president of the society, both condemned the killing, and promised a further investigation.

Wilkins Appointed Cobb Defense Head

George Y. Wilkins, superintendent of Kennesaw Mountain National Battlefield Park, yesterday was named chairman of the Cobb County Civilian Defense Committee by George M. Phillips, director of the Atlanta Metropolitan Area.

Wilkins was recommended to Phillips by Cobb County Commissioner George H. McMillan, who had been requested to pick a man to succeed John T. LeCroy, who resigned several days ago. Wilkins has been active in the National Park Service part of civilian defense, and he has been a member of ROTC, CMTC and the Texas National Guard.

Cobb county is one of five under Phillips' direction. "Co-operation has been splendid recently," Phillips said yesterday, "and Cobb is going ahead with a well-organized program."

Bob, son of Scamp, at left, was the victim of two Fulton county policemen who shot the aged dog in front of the Roberts home yesterday afternoon.

shuffled the heavily tanned youngster, avoiding Martha's attempts to remove lipstick smears. He might have been explaining how he blocked a tackler during a Notre Dame game.

"We were lucky. Some of us slid down lines. Others went to the aid of the destroyer standing by."

Just a Game.

"If I had known you were going to talk to him that long," his pretty friend interrupted after that first two minutes, "why I wouldn't have let you know he was coming in tonight."

"Just a moment," grinned Ed. And we asked him how it felt to be under fire.

"It's like a football game—well, it is a game," Ed replied. "It's just a little rougher and played for higher stakes. It's your life, instead of a touchdown. And it's rougher, all right."

"You're nervous at first, but when the action starts . . . well, it's just like a football game. You forget yourself. You don't worry. You're just in there fighting."

"One thing that helps us, though . . . We feel we're better than they are. That helps a lot."

"Something like the way Notre Dame's better teams feel when they're playing one of Georgia Tech's poorer ones?" asked the reporter.

"Yep," laughed Ed. "That's it. You just know you're going to whip 'em."

"He's just got to be going now," it was Martha again.

The reporter caught the gleam in her eyes and decided further risk of life and limb would not come under the heading of work.

"Just one more question," he shouted at the happy youngsters headed for their automobile. "When are you going to walk down the aisle?"

Ed was puzzled for a minute, caught off guard.

"As soon as possible," he said. "In about three days, I reckon. Just as soon as it can be arranged."

Then Martha was interrupting again. "We don't have to wait that long," she cried. "We can get married tomorrow."

Strange Assortment Of Rubber Scrap Pours in Here

Rubber, the stuff Uncle Sam needs on his jeeps and his battleships and his fighting planes, started pouring into Atlanta filling stations yesterday as owners of ancient tires and dilapidated hot water bottles responded to President Roosevelt's emergency call for scrap rubber.

Two Georgians Win Awards At Annapolis

William M. Pardee, of Atlanta, Excels in 'Rules of Road.'

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 15.—(P)—Midshipman William M. Pardee, son of Mrs. Emily P. Pardee, 1723 North Emory road, of Atlanta, has won the National Women's Relief Corps wrist watch for proficiency in "rules of the road," it was announced today by Rear Admiral John R. Beardall, commandant of the United States Naval Academy here.

Another Georgian, Midshipman Merrill H. Sappington, of Barnesville, and captain of the Naval academy's rifle team, was declared the winner of the Secretary of the Navy's rifle trophy.

The two awards are a part of the academy's annual June Week features which will be climaxed by graduation exercises within the next few days.

Hungarian-Rumanian

Enmity Flares Again

BERN, Switzerland, June 15.—(P)—The old enmity between Hungary and Rumania flared up again today when the Hungarian premier, Nicholas Kallay, replied to new anti-Hungarian measures in Rumania with a warning Hungary would defend her present frontiers "to the death."

Kallay spoke near the Rumanian frontier in Hungarian Transylvania at the same time the Hungarian press published reports the Rumanians were forcing the Hungarian minority to leave the Rumanian Transylvania by confiscating their foodstuffs and refusing to give them ration cards.

These reports said Rumanian soldiers, descending in force, broke into homes and took even the current day's food supply from the Hungarians who were given exit visas to cross to their homeland on foot.

Atlantan Bails Out Of Army Bomber

Sergeant Anerson A. McDonnell, of Atlanta, yesterday qualified for membership in the "Caterpillar Club" when he and five others were forced to bail out of an Army bomber near Boise, Idaho.

The six men landed safely after the pilot had ordered them to jump as a result of motor trouble. The pilot later landed the plane on a small field with slight damage to it.

Negro Visitors To Attend BTU Congress Here

4,000 Delegates Expected at Meeting; Chorus To Give Concert.

Approximately 4,000 Negro out-of-town visitors from 38 states are expected in Atlanta next week to attend the National Sunday School and Baptist Training Union Congress, which meets June 22 through June 28 at municipal auditorium.

A chorus of 500 voices will entertain the assemblage at a congress musicale in the city auditorium at 8 o'clock next Monday night. One section of seats for white persons has been set aside for this event, tickets for which are on sale at the Cable Piano Company.

During the week, morning and night, congress sessions will be held in the city auditorium from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 10 p. m. Training units will convene at the David T. Howard High school from 6 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., and from 2 p. m. to 6 p. m. daily.

The annual congress is meeting in Atlanta for the first time during its 38 years. Local officials include the Rev. C. N. Ellis, chairman of the general committee; Samuel Pettigree, chairman of the music committee; J. A. Hopkins, chairman of pulp supplies, and Professor C. V. Ford and L. C. Mann, directors of congress courses.

Six returned African missionaries also will be present.

Step Right Up, Folks—Pacific Ocean Water—$20 a Gallon

SAN FRANCISCO, June 15.—(AP)—The United States government today stopped the sale of the Pacific ocean at $20 a gallon.

The product was labeled "Merlek" and retailed in half-gallon bottles for $10 a bottle, Assistant United States Attorney A. J. Zupoli told Federal Judge A. F. St. Sure.

Judge St. Sure placed Michael Lee, 65, on probation for five years and fined him $1,000 on his plea of nolo contendere (no defense) to a criminal charge of shipping misbranded products in interstate commerce.

Lee's probation stipulates he must not sell his product unless the labeling is approved by the Federal Food and Drug Administration.

Lee told the court the sea water was given a light treatment which brought out peculiar properties which "helped anyone deficient in minerals."

The United States attorney said Lee had an income of $30,000 a year.

Roberts Plans To Address State June 27

Observers Say Former Official To Enter Senate Race.

Notice that Columbus Roberts would broadcast a statement on Saturday, June 27, whetted the interest of state officials yesterday, several of whom insist that the former commissioner of agriculture will announce as a candidate for the senate.

"Mark my words," said one of them, "he won't enter the race for Governor." He declined to predict, however, that Roberts would enter the race against Senator Russell.

Governor Talmadge declined to speculate. "No comment," he answered when asked what he thought Roberts would say in his address, scheduled for delivery at 7:30 o'clock, June 27.

City May Open New Hospital For Venereals

Unit Available July 15 If Council Will Provide $1,250 Monthly.

A modern equipped venereal disease hospital will be opened July 15 at 11 Hunter street, S. E., if the city provide $1,250 a month for operating expenses, Councilman James E. Jackson told city council yesterday.

Jackson said the finance committee has a request to provide the needed funds and said the building will be equipped by a foundation and that the state and federal governments will provide a staff which will cost about $30,000 a year if the city pays its share of operating expenses.

Jackson said he could not designate the foundation by name, but that all details have been worked out.

The committee will report at the July 6 session of council.

Councilman John A. White's proposal to pool the 180 city-owned and operated trucks to conserve wear and tear on motor vehicles and thus aid the war effort was approved by council.

Other actions of the council included:

1. Passage of a resolution praising Alderman Raleigh Drennon, chairman of the municipal buildings and athletic committee, for his work in attempting to rebuild the fire-razed front portion of the municipal auditorium.
2. Reading of appointments of new committees by Mayor Hartsfield and the designation of Ernest J. Brewer as the mayor's executive secretary.
3. Sent to the finance committee a proposed ordinance by Councilman Paul Butler to fix salaries of all white employees of the municipality at $100 a month minimum.

11 Jurymen Selected For Blalock Trial

Four Panels Exhausted as Many Claim Bias.

Eleven members of a jury of 12 to try Brack Blalock, Atlanta machinery dealer accused of conspiring to defraud the state, were selected yesterday after they had satisfactorily answered a long list of questions designed to exclude bias and politics from the case.

In selecting the 11, four jury panels were exhausted. Those chosen at the end of the long session in Fulton superior court were: J. I. Wright, automobile dealer, of Roswell; F. W. Starr, draftsman, of 672 East Peachtree road; Hendrick C. Patrick, real estate man, of 1355 Peachtree street; O. A. Mayo, grocery clerk, of 40 Peachtree avenue, Buckhead; W. L. Stevenson, salesman, of 714 Willoughby way; E. J. Smith, grocer, of 13 Seaboard avenue, N. W.; J. O. Godard, Constitution route carrier, of 582 Cooper street, S. W.; U. D. Denham, shipping clerk, of 852 Brookline avenue, S. W.; W. C. Painter, linotype operator, of 625 Moreland avenue, S. E.; T. J. Shepherd, telephone repairman, of 688 Evans street, S. W.; and H. V. Shirley, farmer, of Alpharetta.

An unusually large number of men on the panels called disqualified themselves by stating they were biased, three saying that authorization by Governor Talmadge of funds for the investigation into alleged graft in state departments had influenced them either for or against the defendant.

Blalock is the second of 21 defendants indicted by the Fulton county grand jury to face trial. He is charged with having conspired with former Governor Rivers, O. G. Glover, former state purchasing agent; J. G. (Bugs) Glover, supervisor of convict forces; George C. Blount, former highway engineer, and W. W. Willis, former assistant state purchasing agent, to defraud the state by means of "closed specifications" and other devices.

Blalock will be prosecuted by Solicitor General John A. Boykin, aided by Special Prosecutor William G. Grant, Special Prosecutor James A. Branch, and Assistant Solicitors Quincy Arnold and Durwood T. Pye. Blalock will be defended by Marion Smith and Bruce Woodruff.

Excise Tax on Coffee, Tea, Sugar Suggested

WASHINGTON, June 15.—(AP)—Treasury and congressional tax experts were reported today to have suggested a series of new excise taxes to the House Ways and Means Committee, including levies on coffee, tea, sugar and salt, and increased postage rate on newspapers.

Informal sources said, however, that the suggestions, advanced in response to the committee's weekend request, probably would not be accepted.

Still another suggestion presented to the committee would place a cent-a-barrel tax on crude petroleum.

Jap Bombers Again Assault Port of Darwin

Casualties, Damage Inflicted; Several Raiders Believed Downed.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, June 15.—(AP)—Japanese planes bombed Darwin on the northwest coast in the third raid in three days, inflicting casualties and causing minor damage today, but several raiders were believed shot down.

The naval fueling port was attacked by 27 bombers escorted by fighters, the largest attacking force in the recent raids which broke a calm of seven weeks.

Four of the 18 to 25 raiders which came Sunday were shot down and one was felled Saturday. The Allies lost a single plane on each previous raid.

Bomb fragments hit some houses, most of them empty.

The nearest known Japanese base is on the Dutch-Portuguese island of Timor, some 400 miles to the northwest. The reason for their preoccupation with Darwin was not immediately apparent.

Hereford Show Set in Moultrie

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION
MOULTRIE, Ga., June 15.—The midsummer show and sale of registered Hereford and Polled Hereford cattle has been set for July 10 at the livestock auditorium here, according to H. McDowell, of the Moultrie Chamber of Commerce, who says the cattle are being drafted from leading herds in the southeast and are thoroughly acclimated.

W. E. Aycock, sales manager of the auditorium, who has promoted these events for several years, says the demand for good breeding stock is unprecedented, buyers from several states attending every offering. "It is a well-known fact," said Aycock, "that breeding stock is being slaughtered in every European country, thus creating a post war demand for replacements which will tax the facilities of every breeding farm in the south-east."

FBI Men Seize 22 Italians in Cleveland Area

Much Contraband Taken in Arrests in Seven Ohio Cities.

CLEVELAND, June 15.—(AP)—Arrest of 22 Italian aliens and seizure of firearms, including 1,300 rounds of ammunition, in seven Ohio cities was announced today by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The captives, all men, were detained for hearing before the alien enemy hearing board here.

FBI agents, aided by local police, made the raids over the weekend in Cleveland, Youngstown, Canton, East Canton, Akron, Lorain and Alliance.

Two Italian military uniforms, an Italian flag and a plaque of Mussolini were seized. Other contraband included 400 rounds of .22-caliber dum-dum ammunition, 75 rounds of .32-caliber cartridges, 775 shotgun shells, miscellaneous ammunition, three rifles, one revolver, a blackjack, a short-wave radio receiver, four cameras and eight rolls of undeveloped film.

It was the biggest round-up of enemy aliens in the Cleveland area since Pearl Harbor and brought the total to 91 arrests—40 Italians, 46 German and five Japanese.

joined the Wells for Congress clubs throughout the district.

Before the rules were adopted, Judge Bryan ordered a letter read from Ramspeck in which the congressman asked the committee to retain the plurality rule for nomination. There had been some discussion that the new rules might revert to the old system of county unit nomination.

Ramspeck asked that the popular nomination be continued, asserting the county unit method "is not fair in our district."

J. Schley Thompson, chairman of the Fulton county Democratic executive committee, called a meeting of that group for 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the county commissioners' meeting room at the courthouse to fix rules, fees and other incidentals to the Fulton county primary.

World War Number Nine

The isolationists had an argument that this country had been in one World War and that it should not try another. They managed to bring this country almost to the brink of ruin before their influence was blasted out by the Japanese bombs at Pearl Harbor.

Actually this war is World War Number Nine. The historical facts deny entirely the isolationist theory this country could stay out of war if it wished. In making their claims they ignored entirely the facts of life and of war.

Those appeasers in England, and in this country, who assumed that the 100 years of peace from the end of the Napoleonic wars in 1815 to the beginning of the so-called first World War in 1914, were due to any peaceful progress by mankind, were wrong. They ignored the historical facts that England, by exercising the well-known policy of the balance of power, had kept the peace.

The so-called First World War broke up that balance of power, maintained largely through naval power and bases, and the development of air power makes a similar policy impossible.

That was one fallacy. The second was the assumption that our earlier wars were wars involving only America. Actually all of them were a part of a great world war.

In a recent address, Harvard's notable professor of history, Arthur M. Schlesinger, pointed out that America was now engaged in fighting its ninth world war. He listed them as follows:

1. King William's War (1689-1697).
2. Queen Anne's War (1702-1713).
3. King George's War (1744-1748).
4. French and Indian War (1754-1763).
5. Revolutionary War (1775-1783, international after 1778).

6. Naval war with France (1798-1799).
7. War of 1812 (1812-1815).
8. "First" World War (1917-1918).
9. "Second" World War (1941—).

King William's War was a part of the world war which sought to prevent Louis XIV, a dictator, from conquering the world.

In Queen Anne's War the American colonies were a part of the alliance against France. It was a world war without question.

King George's war was an episode in the War of the Austrian Succession.

The French and Indian wars were a part of the Seven Years' War in which Frederick the Great of Prussia and Maria Theresa became involved but which later brought in all the great powers. It was written of Frederick the Great that because he wished to rob a neighbor, "black men fought on the shores of Coromandel and red men scalped one another by the great lakes of North America."

Following that war came our own War of the Revolution which began as a civil war but soon involved France and Spain, who joined us in war on England.

In the War of 1812 this nation made desperate efforts to remain neutral, without avail. It was a world war.

And so it goes. History demonstrates this country has never been able, even before the airplane wiped out distance, to remain out of war.

It is something to remember when we think of the end of the war and the making of a peace in which we must have a part and in which we must guarantee to retain a part in the life of Europe.

—BONDS BUILD BOMBERS—

Heroines of Bataan!

The nation owes a debt to the nurses of Bataan and Corregidor that can be repaid only to the extent the nation answers the call to service in assistance to all nurses.

These gallant girls, for they were little more than youngsters most of them, gave all they possessed to the wounded of the American Philippine forces—even to the Japanese captured and brought wounded to the hospitals. Only 22 escaped. Some 65 were left behind on Corregidor, prisoners of the Japanese.

It so happens that the nurses of the nation are asking help today. The Army is calling many to the service, and their place must be taken by nurses who long since have retired, by volunteer aides and by others who enter training.

The world long has been indebted to the white-clad heroines of the hospital wards. The debt of Bataan has been added, and some partial payment now needs must be made.

—BONDS BUILD BOMBERS—

Truck Load Law

A farmer near Pelham, Ga., loaded a carload of cabbages a little more than a week ago. The car was iced and the cabbages started on their way.

Railroad traffic troubles delayed the car. The cabbage was ruined before it reached its destination, a week late.

In the same territory two carloads of tomatoes left for the Baltimore market. Six days later they were still on the road, ruined. Delay had ruined them.

The railroads say they are helpless. They cannot control delays caused by troop or war materials shipments.

The farmers reply that the truck-load law must be revised. If it is not there will be ugly charges made that railroad lobbies are trying to break down truck competition. Some charges already have been made. The nation doesn't need that, must not have it.

The farmer can get his produce to the most distant markets in about 48 hours by truck.

Many farmers also depending on truck services to pick up their produce, and that of their neighbors, and take it to market.

In neither case can the trucks return home with two-thirds of their load capacity.

The farmers have protested to Washington. To date there seems to be no indication their protest will be heeded.

Produce must be moved if the nation is to be fed.

The truck-load law, as it applies to farms and other movements of products and materials, needs more study, some revision.

Goose, Gander

On the general theory that what's good for the goose is good for the gander, one may expect Japan to attack in Siberia at an early date, certainly this summer. Because, certainly, what's good for Germany is good for Japan.

The Japanese-German plan calls for mutual control, within their own geographic spheres, of large sections of Russian territory.

The long dagger of Siberian soil, extending down to well-fortified Vladivostok, long has kept Japanese naval and army officers jumpy.

If Japan does not attack, it will be because our airplanes and submarines have done so much damage Japan is afraid to risk any number of planes and transports in a Siberian move.

Best bet is she will. A large army has been there for years. Land-based planes can operate from Japan.

If Germany makes any headway in Russia, Japan will strike.

Glencoe Experiment

An interesting commentary on this strange and doubtful quality known as human nature comes from an Illinois city. The place is Glencoe, near Chicago, where instead of picking wild flowers, breaking down shrubs, and digging up the grass in the parks, the children plant things and take care of them. Yes, they're normal, active American children—although at first glance one would say "it isn't possible."

What is the answer? In a word—education. These children of Glencoe, no different from the children in any other American community, have had their activity and their playful energy skillfully turned into constructive channels. In a couple of words, there is the answer—energy turned into constructive channels.

There is a lesson for us all in what these children have accomplished. By the same token, could not adults be educated to turn their activities into constructive channels? Would this not mean a better and a more intelligent world? Yes, it seems as though it would. But it will take a long time for adults to learn the lesson of the children. When they do, however, the world will have moved forward with giant strides toward the goal of finer things.

Georgia Editors Say:

SOLDIERS IN OVERALLS
(From the Echols Press)
This is war—total war—and the American farmers are the "soldiers in overalls." Agricultural education is confronted with the greatest responsibility that it has ever faced in providing those "soldiers in overalls" with sorely needed help. Agricultural education must do this job and do it with willingness and dispatch. It will require a new philosophy or at least the application of a philosophy which recognizes the full importance of adult education. It will require money and hard work but its accomplishment is so vital and necessary that agricultural education must not count the cost of sacrifice. It must go all-out for the early completion of a real high school in adult education which will serve the American farmers from coast to coast.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

ATTILLA THE HUN WASHINGTON, June 15.—After what the Germans have acknowledged doing to the little town of Lidice in Czechoslovakia there is no longer occasion to doubt the worst atrocity stories that have come out of the war.

Every war, of course, has its cruelties and sufferings. The world has become callous to much of it. Civilian populations are often left coldly impressed, partially because they are usually far removed from the actual scenes of blood-letting and find the slaughter unbelievable. Always also there is a tendency of the propagandists to exaggerate, which leads to confusion in the public mind as to what to accept and what to reject.

What happened at Lidice is noteworthy not so much from the comparatively slight addition it made to the colossal toll of blood and agony which society has been made to suffer by those responsible for this war. It was not the mere taking of human life that was shocking. We are accustomed to that.

It was the violation of every principle of decency that has been built up over a period of a thousand years of civilization. One that has scarcely been repeated with such hideous atrocity since the days of Attila the Hun.

At Lidice, a small town of some 1,200 population, every structure was razed to the ground and the entire male population slaughtered. All of the women of the village were sent to concentration camps and their children placed in institutions.

JAPANESE WORSE The sole provocation for such a crime was that the Nazis suspected the village of harboring the assassin of Heydrich, one of Hitler's chief henchmen. Hundreds of other Czech innocents had previously been slaughtered for the same offense.

None of this is rumor. Neither is it the product of a terrified refugee's imagination or an angry propagandist's invention. We have the word of an official announcement from the Nazi radio as to its correctness. The Nazis themselves are the ones who revealed what happened.

For months the Russians have been complaining bitterly of German atrocities. M. Molotov, the Soviet commissar of foreign affairs, himself prepared an official report certifying to the bestial cruelties inflicted by the Germans on Russian captives. In it he told of villages being wiped out, of men and women slaughtered, behind the lines, of Soviet soldiers having their eyes gouged out, their bodies dismembered, and a thousand other merciless acts which belong to an age of savagery.

The stories of the German atrocities told by the Russians were unbelievable and hence they did not receive the attention that was their due. Now in the face of the Nazi official admission we should be prepared to believe anything.

The Japanese, according to well authenticated evidence, are worse offenders than the Germans, if it is possible to conceive of anything worse than the crime committed at Lidice. At the present moment The Saturday Evening Post is running a series of articles written by a man who escaped from Hong Kong. He told his story to President Roosevelt before writing it and the President urged that he spare no details.

EXAMPLE NEEDED Every American should read it. It will give us a greater determination than ever to prosecute the war to a victorious finish, a realization of what awaits us if the lousy band of Axis murderers ever get possession of this country.

British officers and soldiers, after surrendering to the outnumbering Japs, were slaughtered in cold blood—tortured first, then bayoneted. Chinese non-belligerents were made the playthings of death at the hands of Japanese soldiers. Massacres and rapings have followed in the wake of the Japanese army. There is no assurance that our own men captured with the fall of the Philippines have not suffered a similar fate.

When the war is finally won we should make such an example of the Germans and the Japs that no race of people will soon dare invoke the wrath of civilized nations again by plunging the world into war. Around some of the better clubs of London the British are quietly talking of turning the Poles loose in Germany to police the country, once the Japs and all his forces are beaten down. No group of people has ever suffered the brutalities and murders they received at the hands of the Germans. What they would do if given the freedom of the land would be appalling.

For dealing with Japan we might adopt a similar course by sending the Chinese, the Koreans, and the Filipinos to Tokyo for police duty. The lessons the treacherous Japs would learn from a mission of that kind should be enough to restrain them for a thousand years.

The Pulse of the Public

The Constitution invites expression of opinion by its readers. This column is open for that purpose. All communications must be signed and all are subject to editing for conservation of space. Brevity makes argument effective and impels attention.

ALLIES MAKE GREAT CONTRIBUTION
Editor, Constitution: What can we, as individual Americans, do about this? Realistically recognize the contribution already made by our Allies?

Remember that Great Britain between the fall of France and Russia's entrance into the war fought alone, to the equator, while terrible bombings cost the lives of 100,000 British civilians at home. Last year Britain received 2,000 planes and 200 tanks, mostly from the United States; but she supplied her Allies with 9,000 planes and 3,000 tanks.

Remember that China has fought the Japanese invaders for 11 years, losing millions of armed men in battle and millions more of unarmed civilians in air raids.

Remember that Russia—the only nation so far that has actually stopped the German war machine—has already cost Hitler at least 2,000,000 Nazi soldiers.

Remember that the Norwegian merchant marine has carried half the oil and 17 per cent of all other war goods shipped to England.

Remember the Chetniks, the guerrilla warriors of General Milakovich, whose daring and skill have made the mountains of Yugoslavia an Allied fortress in the heart of Axis Europe.

Remember the Poles who stand against the Nazis in Libya, in the Caucasus, and fly against them with the Free French fighting in Africa; remember Greece, and Czechoslovakia, and the Netherlands and Belgium, occupied by Hitler but not conquered, whose people sabotage and fight and plan for the revolt that will greet the Allied Armies.

Though justly proud of our great war drive, let's remember that we have been in the war a little over six months and have yet to win our spurs, outside of our great naval victory at Midway. For all our pride in the performance of our soldiers and sailors and fliers, in the record-breaking performance of our factories and shipyards, are achieving, don't forget for a moment the incalculable debt we already owe the other members of the United Nations.

The boy next door is still alive because that British pilot who didn't come back, that Russian gunner who died to stop Hitler's tanks, that Chinese soldier killed in action on the Burma road. If we were fighting the full strength of the Axis alone, the lives of millions of Americans would have already been taken.

2. Resist the attacks of the enemy.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Dangerous Law NEW YORK, June 15.—The law forbidding employers and others to spy on those political organizations known as labor unions, which have private taxing powers and their own private laws and courts, is a dangerous law and should be repealed.

There is no reason why these political groups, with their great powers and their over-all record of ruthless criminality and oppression, should be given the protection of a federal law which attempts to preserve the dark secrecy that all conspirators and thieves prefer.

No other element in our whole nation enjoys such protection, although there is no other element whose evil record so urgently demands that its conduct be carefully watched at all times in the public interest including, most imperatively, the interest of the workers.

I have not heard whether Senator Robert M. La Follette intends to proceed against me for investigating union affairs, often with the assistance of men within the unions, but if he should call me before his left wing Dies committee of the senate, I would cheerfully say that I have had thousands of communications from union members revealing otherwise than the facts of misconduct within the ruling group of unions.

Useful Information I would tell him that much information has been found useful by prosecutors, both federal and state, in punishing crooks who could not have been exposed except by victims of the inside. I would tell him that some of his colleagues in both houses of the national legislature have asked permission to examine the data in my files and have used this material for guidance in conducting investigations.

It seems unlikely that Senator La Follette would try to punish these public prosecutors and these congressional colleagues of his for receiving this information obtained by means which might be challenged as a violation of the sanctity of union affairs.

And have I been guilty of spying in passing on information to some public officials and even to employers so that the employers might protect their legitimate interests and the workers in their employ? Because, if so, let La Follette call the wagon, for I have done just that and intend to continue to do so.

I exchange information with employers and lawyers engaged in fighting off predatory unionists. I receive much information from workers who, in turn, sometimes call on me for data on union man-hunters who are trying to unionize them against their will. A group of workers in a southern city called on me some time ago and I gave them information on Mike Quill, the Irish spy liner of the Transport Workers' Union of the CIO which, I hope, had some effect in their decision to keep out of the clutches of this consistent follower of the Moscow line.

Party Line I have before me at this moment a copy of the Office and Professional News, the publication of the Office Clerks' Union of the CIO. This and the CIO Communications Union, composed of wire and wireless telegraph operators and teletype operators, are two of the most dangerous organizations in the country, for the standard point of espionage, between them they have access to correspondence, books and business secrets of the companies which employ their members and to a great proportion of all the confidential wire and radio messages, not only of companies and individuals, but of the government as well.

Well, the Office and Professional News will give you an idea how Red is the Office Workers' Union. This paper carries an advertisement for the Communist party's official organ and a display story shouting up the demand of the party-line New York Newspaper Guild, that my copy be excluded from the Stars and Stripes, a publication of the various American expeditionary forces, on political grounds. It also contains a ball-hoop story of a recent Communist party line movie called "Native Land," in which the narration is done by Paul Robeson, the Negro singer, who has spent much time in Russia and is identified with many Communist front organizations.

It contains a cheer for the release of Earl Browder, the chief of the Communist, anti-American conspiracy, and a proposal that each member of the union be assessed one hour's pay per month for Russian war relief and for no other relief.

Patriotic Service Does Senator La Follette believe that such an organization would be able to engage in espionage against the employers of office workers, having access to the employers' confidential affairs? And is the employer guilty of a wrong if he, in turn, spies on this Communist front which has planted spies in his place?

There is no longer any doubt that the political party for which this union shows such a strong devotion is an anti-American conspiracy. That question was settled by Attorney General Francis Biddle in an opinion, prompted by we know not what devious political motives, in the Harry Bridges case when he said the party "advices and advocates the overthrow by force and violence of the government of the United States." So I say that Americans who can do so should spy on such an organization and that such spying, far from deserving punishment, is a patriotic service.

If you back off and take an objective look you must realize that the only reason why spying on unions is forbidden is a political reason. For Mr. Biddle, in another announcement a short while before his Bridges opinion, acknowledged that the unions with their vast treasuries and taxing powers are political agencies of the party in power.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

IT ALL COSTS MONEY Ordnance men sometimes fear their hair because of the public failure to realize that guns are not just guns and especially because the guns of this present war greatly differ from the guns of the so-called World War One.

In this war there really is an extraordinary great specialization in ordnance.

And this helps to explain why production is more difficult and also why war costs more money than ever before.

Artillery will serve as an example. In the first World War, so-called, we had artillery starting with light field guns and working on up to the giant 16-inch guns.

Those guns still are in service, but with lessening use.

We have had to develop many new guns. In this war we have specialized antiaircraft guns and those we had at the start of the war were made obsolete by the new powerful engines of airplanes which gave them higher ceilings. The result was a new specialization and a new gun.

We had anti-tank guns developed for this war and had to re-do them. We have tank guns and we have specialized guns for airplanes up to the 37-millimeter cannon of the Bell Aircraft.

In the first war the machinegun emerged as a great battle weapon. It was the machinegun which made a trench war of that war of 1914-18.

Now we don't have just machineguns. We begin with automatic rifles and with "Tommy" guns which each soldier can carry. The Commando troops each have such a machinegun.

In the field there are machineguns fitted to heavy tanks. There are 50-caliber machineguns to fit dive bombers. And we have machineguns fitted on aircraft whose characteristic is almost unbelievable rapidity of fire.

A FEW NUTS TO CRACK When you specialize you develop more nuts to crack.

For example—if you are firing antiaircraft guns it is important the guns should be able to locate your batteries.

So, it was necessary to develop a load which would give off very little flash. Such a propellant was developed.

When you must mount guns in airplanes you cannot forget the problem of weight. A long barrel means more weight. It was necessary to make short-barreled guns for planes. This meant, with ordinary loads, the speed of the projectile would be relatively slow.

So, it was necessary to develop a super-quick propellant, one which would send the projectile out of a short barrel at a tremendous speed.

At the end of the first World War TNT was regarded as the last word in explosives. Part of your taxes in that first World War went to pay for TNT which had just been developed and which was sold at about 15 cents per pound. But today TNT, while still valuable and in use, is not good enough. For small shells, such as fired by aircraft guns of 30 and 50 caliber, there must be more punch than TNT can supply.

The British are using a special explosive in their new bombs. The Germans and Russians developed a new one for their mines. There also is the field of tracer bullets and tracer shells, to say nothing of new chemicals for incendiary bombs and shells.

This war is many, many times more specialized in weapons and explosives than the first war.

It costs many, many times more.

SERVICES SPECIALIZED All this means that services must be more specialized and complicated. The problem of mobility adds to the complexity of weapons and transport.

Tanks were a product of the first war—small, ridiculous when compared with modern-day tanks, but still tanks.

What tanks are, of course, are a trench which moves and carries artillery with it. When the trenches began to roll about the guns fired against them were found to be ineffective. In the spring of 1940 it was said that batteries of French 75's would blast all the German tanks off the earth.

And, so they might have, but the tanks didn't act right for the job. They sensibly refused to move straight at the batteries. Before they could be turned around the tanks had come in from the flanks and wiped out the 75's.

Tanks got along at 30 and 40 miles an hour and the French guns hardly got to fire a shot.

So, it was necessary to develop rubber-tired guns which are pulled by tractors or trucks. They have special mounts so they can be turned easily and quickly to meet any flanking move by tanks.

In the old war artillery was used to destroy positions which the infantry then took. It was then necessary to bring up the infantry and attack new positions to which the enemy had retreated.

Today the dive bomber is the modern infantry. It supplements, but does not replace, the artillery.

The guns nations had were not good enough. The target was a swiftly-moving target. A dive bomber is in the field of fire for only a second or so. So, it was necessary to develop guns which would fire hundreds of shots per second instead of hundreds per minute.

With rapid fire the lifetime of the best barrel is short. That complicates production. Often the barrels on aircraft guns have to be replaced after one period of combat.

It is a very complicated war and if we will get the picture of what has happened to guns and explosives it will be easier to understand why the nation that uses its scientists and which develops many physicists and chemists and engineers is out in front.

"So They Stood Bemused and Unseeing Till His Arrows Struck Them Down"
By ROBERT QUILLEN.

What pathetic fools we are! Boasting of our little successes! Betting nine to two that it will end in victory before Christmas! Showing off our heroes as though the job had been finished! Telling ourselves it's in the bag!

Can we read it? We understand what we see and know? Our fighting men are scattered over the world; desperately trying to hold key points; fighting gamely against unbeatable odds; backing up, always backing up, or dying where they stand. Brave beyond words, but taking a beating.

Beaten in the Philippines; whipped out of Burma; surrendering in utter exhaustion, to be starved and tortured. And on our Atlantic coast, here in our own waters, in one of the great naval conflicts of the war, we are suffering a major defeat—a shameful and humiliating defeat. Brave men going down in flaming oil—expert men who cannot be replaced. Ships and their precious cargoes going down two and three times as fast as we are replacing them.

China in desperate straits—China whose help we must have to win—hard pressed because we didn't send the planes we could have sent. Russia had pressed, too—Russia whose help we must have to win—fighting with heroic courage and great skill, but steadily growing weaker as she sacrifices equipment that cannot be replaced. Brave men falling by the tens of thousands, their broken bodies littering the fields for a thousand miles.

And we bet on early victory! We whine about giving up a little gasoline. We refuse to save the rubber for want of which our boys will die. We tolerate seditious publications and enemy agents. Our politicians feather their own nests and neglect war work to fight for personal power.

Has some strange force affected our minds so that we are incapable of realizing the truth? Are we doomed to live in a trance-like dream until our fate overtakes us?

Our darkest days lie ahead—the darkest in all our history. Before the summer ends we shall know such humiliation and shame and despair as we have never imagined. Then will come the times that try men's souls. Can we take it and stand it and go on to win if our spirits are upheld only by the silly optimism of ignorance?

God give us men who can make us see the grim truth and steel our hearts for the long and dreadful task that lies ahead.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

Allies To Share War Cost According To Ability To Pay

WASHINGTON, June 15.—(AP)—The financial cost of the war will be shared by the United Nations according to their ability to pay, Congress was told today in a presidential report which disclosed that lend-lease aid had reached nearly $4,500,000,000 by the end of May.

ARMY WATERWINGS—Comely Elaine Eversole doesn't need this life vest, for she's an expert speed swimmer, but she's lending the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company her figure to model the vest designed for the U. S. Army Air Corps. The new vest inflates itself with carbon dioxide gas in three seconds, supports the wearer in water even if unconscious or wounded.

This distribution of cost would be attained, the report said, "if each country devotes roughly the same fraction of its national production to the war."

The document indicated that if the United States converted 50 per cent of her vast production to war purposes, she would call it square, so far as lend-lease is concerned, with any other United Nation which contributed a similar portion of production. Neither the volume of output nor the dollar value would be the governing factor.

No Growing Rich.

"Such a distribution of the financial cost of war means that no nation will grow rich from the war effort of its allies," the report said. "The money cost of the war will fall according to the rule of equality in sacrifice as in effort."

The United States intends, the report declared, to avoid "the political and economic mistakes of international debt experience during the twenties."

It spoke of hopes that plans would develop soon for "a series of agreements and recommendations for legislation in the fields of commercial policy, of money and finance, international investment and reconstruction."

It was the fifth quarterly report on lend-lease operations submitted to Congress by President Roosevelt. It showed a constantly increasing flow of war supplies of all types to the British commonwealth of nations and 35 other countries, with military items now comprising more than half of total transfers.

50 Billion Authorization.

Congress has authorized lend-lease assistance to a maximum in excess of $50,000,000,000. As of May 1, aid amounted to $3,673,000,000 in goods transferred, awaiting transfer or use, or in process of manufacture, and $824,000,000 in services, such as repairing British warships in this country, ferrying planes and erecting production facilities. Actual exports of lend-lease articles up to the end of May amounted to $2,601,000,000.

"Our reservoir of resources is now approaching flood stage," the President asserted in a letter transmitting the report to Congress. "The next step is for our military, industrial and shipping experts to direct its full force against the centers of enemy power."

The shipping shortage is the problem, saying that available cargoes were in excess of available ships.

southward after the victory on May 4 at Tulagi harbor in the Solomon Islands. Although we had not recognized it as such, total destruction of the occupation force, cruisers, destroyers, and the all-important transports in Tulagi harbor, had been only the opening wedge for the separate fight in which we now found ourselves.

On May 5 and 6 we had refueled at sea—never stopping our steaming but taking on fuel through hose lines that connected tankers with us. It was not essential for us to fuel, but Rear Admiral Fletcher, who was commanding the entire task force, and Rear Admiral Aubrey Fitch, commanding the Lexington group, believed that they should have their tanks as nearly full as possible at all times.

Jap Fleet Located.

During the afternoon of May 6 our air scouts located the first of the Jap pincers fleet. It was 250 miles northeast of what then were our positions, and was described as two big carriers, four heavy cruisers and a dozen or more destroyers. This was the fleet sent to hold the Jomard passage at the southeastern tip of New Guinea. Admiral Fletcher at once turned our force and steamed hard to be in position to hit the Japs the next day.

Off before dawn the morning of May 7, our scouts did not find the enemy for some hours. Shortly after 8 o'clock, however, they made contact.

The Japs had split up during the night, and our planes found only one carrier, three heavy cruisers, and six destroyers. The other cruisers and carrier, plus six destroyers, had parted company with the main force and were not seen again on May 7.

The American Air Fleet Stalking

The Japanese consisted of 24 torpedo planes, each with one heavy torpedo; 36 scouts and dive bombers each with one 1,000-pound bomb, or one 500-pound bomb and two 100-pound bombs; and 16 fighter planes to deal with Japanese defensive and scout plane patrols.

The route they followed was chosen to bring the airman against the Japanese near the island of Misima, the northernmost island of the Louisiades archipelago that is flung out off the eastern tip of New Guinea. Climbing through the clouds they leveled off in clear air, then were able to see the ocean when the cloud layer ended.

Their course took them along the northern edge of the island of Tagula, then north past the eastern tip of Misima. Lieutenant Commander Hamilton, leading the dive bombers, picked out the Japanese 50 miles away. Visibility was perfect, the sky cloudless, and the white wakes of the vessels showed as silver streaks on the emerald-blue sea.

"We came over at 12,000 feet," Lieutenant Commander Bob Dixon explained later. Enemy fighter planes were seen along the northern edge of the island of Tagula, then north past the eastern tip of Misima. Lieutenant Commander Hamilton, leading the dive bombers, picked out the Japanese 50 miles away. Visibility was perfect, the sky cloudless, and the white wakes of the vessels showed as silver streaks on the emerald-blue sea.

Georgians Pay 5 Millions On Income Tax

Second Installment of 1942 Bill Floods Office Here.

Georgians made their second installment payment on their annual income tax bill yesterday—to the tune of more than $5,000,000—and woe betide those who forgot!

Internal Revenue Collector Marion H. Allen said last night the law provides that those who did not pay an installment will owe all three remaining payments today.

"The balance is due instantly," Allen said, "with six per cent interest for the time it is not paid."

However, from the number of checks, money orders and cash payments that had been received up to closing time last night, the collector did not anticipate a great many delinquencies.

As much of the taxes as workers were able to count up to last night totaled $5,386,159.02 with hundreds of letters still unopened. Collections for the same period last year totaled $4,670,292.93—$885,866 less than this year's taxes.

Other payments are due September 15 and December 15—and only soldiers and sailors can hope to get the time deferred, Collector Allen said.

BLACKOUT DRIVING FATAL

BROWNWOOD, Texas, June 15.—(P)—Camp Bowie authorities announced today Private William Aaron, of Jasper, Ala., member of the 631st Tank Destroyer Battalion, was killed Saturday night during practice blackout driving. The truck he was driving ran off a culvert.

on June 5 for his determination and courage in action on February 20 when his ship was attacked by 18 Jap bombers (the same action in which Lieutenant O'Hare shot down five and damaged a sixth.)

Almost all of our returning planes bore bullet holes and one rear gunner was wounded. The day's fighting was not over however. The afternoon weather was bad, with rain squalls and low clouds, but our fighter squadrons went out. Just at dusk, with a mist beginning to obscure the ocean, they ran into a Japanese Zero squadron of nine. There were four of our ships, led by Lieutenant Paul Ramsey.

In the ensuing melee, with the little washbasin planes diving and circling, we heard the following radio dialog: "Mable to Agnes. Japs. Nine Zeros. Tally-ho. You take the center pair and I'll take the last pair, chum," came Ramsey's voice.

"Here we go, see you later," came the voice of "Agnes." There was the usual jumble of static and minutes passed. Then Ramsey's voice again. He was speaking to Lieutenant Commander Flatley, who had come into the scrap and attacked the leading five Zeros.

"Paul to Flatley. How many did you get, Jimmy?"

"Three for sure. How many did you get?"

"Only two, darn it."

"Only two, darn it," was the reply dripping with disappointment.

Back on board the Lexington we learned that Lieutenant Baker had collided with a Jap fighter in the second scrap and both crashed at sea. Baker was the only casualty, but one other American pilot was unable to return to the carrier in the poor visibility and after an hour and a half of milling in the darkness he alighted on an island.

A group of us were standing on the Lexington's flight deck talking over the day when the final thrill came. Nosing on from the dark were nine planes, planes we never knew nor recognized. They dived directly over us, peeled off into the single-landing circle, and flashed on their lights. The leader began a regular flashing of a code signal.

It happened that our own landing code signal that day started in the same manner so that all of us stood stunned with surprise for a moment. Then a gunner on one of our protecting cruisers recognized the planes as Japanese. He opened fire and was followed by every gun on the other flotilla members.

I often wondered what would have happened if we had allowed the Japs to make a landing.

But this was not to be. They snapped off their navigation and landing lights with the first shot and almost immediately disappeared. Following them a lone scout plane reported that they were seen alighting on a carrier only 30 miles away. This scout, directed home by radio from the Lexington, said that he counted a huge Japanese force accompanying the carrier.

All this meant peril for our flotilla. The Japanese unquestionably were warned and perhaps hunting us through the darkness. In spite of the weather a night attack impended, and the ship's company remained at action stations.

In a full I counted up the day's results. We had sunk a large Japanese carrier and a cruiser and knocked 23 planes out of the air. Besides this number there were also the Jap planes that went down aboard their carrier.

In our enemy we recognized a tough, fanatical foe whose courage and cunning could not be overcounted. Our forces appeared about equal. It was a question of who would get the first blow home. We had seen what planes could do to a carrier in the day's action. Tomorrow would come the world's first battle between two strong carrier forces, each knowing of the other's presence. History was in the making as we groped through the pitch-black night.

My next story will tell of the Lexington's last battle.

Early Approval Predicted For Barge Canal

Florida Project Could Be Built in 9 Months, Green Says.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—(AP)—A barge canal across north Florida could be constructed in nine months, Representative Green, Democrat, Florida, said today in predicting prompt house approval of the Mansfield measure which would authorize building of such a canal and a pipe line.

Green said he had conferred with Chairman Mansfield, Democrat, Texas, of the House Rivers and Harbors Committee, and said the Texas was "strongly supporting" the barge canal item in the bill.

The measure will be brought up Wednesday in the house as a special order of business. Amendment from the floor will be possible.

Meanwhile Representative Peterson, Democrat, Florida, one of those who voted against the bill when it was brought up previously said:

"Any canal should be a lock type canal so as to safeguard the water supply of Florida. Provision should be made for the United States to pay for the bridges required to cross it and south Florida should be assured this canal would not be used to bypass them, and to delay the inland waterway on the west coast of Florida and the deepening of the existing waterway from Fort Myers to Stuart."

Colorfully attired in feathered headdress and buckskin clothes, six chiefs of the once powerful Iroquois Confederacy of New York solemnly presented to Vice President Wallace a resolution adopted at a tribal council in New York last week asserting the sentiment of the assembled chiefs "that the six nations of Indians declare that a state of war exists between our confederacy of six nations on the one part and Germany, Italy, Japan and their allies against whom the United States has declared war on the other part."

The resolution is subject to ratification by a tribal conference of representatives of the 6,000 members of the six nations next month.

Chief Jesse Lyons, of the Onondagas, who read and presented the resolution to Wallace at a colorful ceremony on the broad steps of the capitol, told the vice president that while the Indians may have had differences with their white brothers in the past "that is all over. Let us be united now and win this war together."

Accepting the resolution Wallace assured Chief Lyons that it would be delivered to President Roosevelt in accordance with the wishes of the chiefs who asked that it be "presented forthwith to the President of the United States that he may take full recognition of any declaration of war that may be made by the confederacy of six nations against these common enemies of mankind."

Under a treaty signed in 1794 the United States recognized the sovereignty of the confederacy and still pays to the tribes an annual tribute of calico in recognition of the "peace and friendship."

In 1917 the six nations declared war independently against imperial Germany and so far as the white man has been advised never ratified the peace.

Old City Hall Site Offered for Sale

The city yesterday was offered the old city hall site for $200,000, a figure $115,000 short of the consideration the property brought about three years ago.

Ward Wight, Atlanta realtor, filed with council through Councilman John A. White, an offer to turn the property, located at Forsyth and Marietta streets back to the city, to be used similar to the New York Town Hall, for the sum of $200,000.

The present owners are willing to accept about $70,000 worth of city-owned property scattered throughout the city and take notes for the remaining $130,000 at 4 per cent interest.

Council referred the request to the finance committee for study and a recommendation.

Miss Perkins Recommends 48-Hour Week

Says Work Limit Is Needed To Keep Efficiency Up.

NEW YORK, June 15.—(AP)—Secretary of Labor Perkins said today that the 48-hour week and the 160-hour plant production program had become the "optimum—best working average—for the duration of the war."

Addressing delegates from the United States and Canada to the convention of the Pattern Makers' League of North America, Miss Perkins said:

"Mass production war workers must have a limit to their work in order to produce their best, and 48 hours a week is that limit with but few exceptions."

She said that while it was taken for granted that women would go into war production work, she felt that there was "too much loose thinking on the subject of women in war."

"I believe that it is a mistake to call the mothers of young children into factories or into any other form of war work until we use up all the other reserve," she said.

"The system of family life in America is more essential than what these women have to offer."

Incendiaries Mean Nothing To Warden

Air-raid wardens around Atlanta really have been taught contempt for incendiaries, reports George M. Phillips, metropolitan area director for Civilian Defense.

"A hundred well-placed incendiaries would just about take care of a block of homes, you know," Phillips said. "During a recent practice raid in the Buckhead section, we were having the wardens call in reports. One was really enthusiastic. He reported excitedly:

"Two thousand incendiaries just fell on my block, but everything's under control."

U. S. Sinks Jap Cruiser, Hits Plane Carrier

where they might have expected relatively light resistance.

Today's announcement showed that they had not withdrawn before the full force of available American air power could be brought to bear.

Eight Carriers Lost

They might well have remembered what happened to them in the Coral sea and off Midway, however. A careful compilation of their total losses in those two engagements—the first of which secured the approaches to Australia and the second the approaches to vital Pearl Harbor—shows that they had 18 ships sunk, including four cruisers and three aircraft carriers; three battleships, three cruisers and three carriers; three probably sunk, including one cruiser and one carrier, and three probably damaged, including two cruisers and one carrier.

Today's reports, including the successful attacks reported by General Arnold, raised the grand total of ships which the Japanese have had put out of action in their attempts to crack the American defense line in the Pacific to 59, including eight aircraft carriers.

B-26 Planes Praised

The report by General Arnold was made in the form of a congratulatory telegram to the Glenn L. Martin Company, Baltimore aircraft manufacturers, whose planes include the B-26 medium bomber.

Arnold's telegram to the company said that B-26 planes carrying torpedoes had sunk one cruiser and damaged an aircraft carrier. This report was not formally confirmed by the Navy command, which simply did not mention the ships Arnold had enumerated. Naval authorities said in explanation only that the communication contained the latest information available to them.

This was the second time that B-26 medium bombers have struck smashing blows against Japan's warships. They participated in the Midway battle, also as torpedo bombers. Two failed to return to their base, but the officers of the other two reported they had scored direct hits on Japanese carriers. Officials said that the Midway engagement saw the first use of Army bombers as torpedo planes in actual combat.

Greek King Thanks Solons For U. S. Aid

George Pledges Fight to End in Senate Speech.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—(AP)—King George II of Greece told the senate today that his country "is proud to find itself a second time within a quarter of a century by the side of the powerful and generous American democracy."

"In the United States," the exiled monarch said, "my country always has found support and sympathetic understanding. The valuable aid which you have given us during this war will never be forgotten."

A group of native-garbed Indians occupied a row of seats in the crowded galleries as King George was ushered into the chamber by a committee of four senators.

Sensors and spectators arose and applauded at length as the bespectacled King, in Greek army uniform with crossed guns and gold crown insignia on his shoulders, took his place before a battery of microphones.

Introducing the King, Vice President Wallace said:

"For centuries Greece has held aloft the torch of freedom and never more than now. I present His Majesty the King."

King George then began reading a prepared speech in a clear voice with only slight traces of accent.

"Above all else," said the King, "it is vital that those who have fought the battle of right be secured against invasion, and the wrong-doers—including those who either for ulterior motives or simply because of weakness, permitted themselves to become tools of the Axis—be impressed that predatory policies do not pay."

"We will fight on land, we will fight on sea," he concluded, "and we will fight in the air, to the very end, by your side and by the side of the other United Nations, until barbaric violence is put down and a new world is established—a world for free men, not for slaves."

King George was the first monarch to address the chamber since the late King Albert of the Belgians spoke there in 1919.

AROUND Atlanta

WITH THE CONSTITUTION STAFF

Three-day administrative conference of Optimist International will be held in Chicago August 2-4, it was announced yesterday. The conference replaces the convention scheduled for Atlanta July 5 to 8 and cancelled as a war conservation measure. Officers and a single delegate from each club will meet in Chicago.

John B. Gordon Camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans, will entertain at a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in Rich's restaurant. The medal winning essay, "Southern Women in Defense," by Jack Keller, of Boys' High school, will be read at the meeting. Judge John D. Humphries, commander, will preside.

Atlanta's plan for staggered hours will be discussed at a meeting of the Atlanta Manufacturers and Distributors Association tonight at the Mayfair Club. Karl Bevin, chairman of the traffic engineering committee of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, will be the speaker.

Eleven members of the Atlanta chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants plan to attend the twenty-third International Cost Conference at the Palmer House, Chicago, from June 22-24. They are: W. J. Carter, J. J. Doran, D. A. Ratcliff, E. M. Turlington, J. R. Walters, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Baker, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Harrington and Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Worthington.

W. E. Harrington, vice president and secretary of Sprattlin, Harrington & Thomas, Atlanta, will attend a meeting of the board of governors of the Mortgage Bankers' Association of America Friday and Saturday at the Knickerbocker hotel, Chicago.

Dr. M. D. Collins, state school superintendent, has been named chairman of the educational and historical commission of the Georgia Grand Lodge by Grand Master Zach Arnold. The commission will meet in Atlanta at 2:30 o'clock June 22. Other Atlanta members are the Rev. Firley Baum, George Starr Peck and W. G. Hastings.

Judge Chester A. Byars, of Griffin, yesterday paid the $250 entry fee as a candidate to succeed himself on the Griffin judicial circuit bench in the September primary, Miss Nina Cox, secretary of the state Democratic executive committee, announced.

Bank clearings totaled $20,100,000 yesterday compared with $17,500,000 for the corresponding day last year.

A New Plan to Conserve Tires, Gasoline, Man Power

Beginning July 15---

A Charge of 75 Cents for Service Calls, To Replace Electric Fuses in Homes

To save vitally needed gasoline and tires and to conserve man power for essential work, the Georgia Power Company, beginning July 15, will charge 75 cents for service calls to replace electrical fuses in the homes of our customers.

The purpose of the charge is to encourage you to change your own fuses, not to collect a fee for this service.

Each year we make thousands of these fuse calls, running up thousands of miles of automobile operation. While this Company is permitted to buy gasoline and tires necessary for work in maintaining electric service, we have no right to waste these critical materials. Nor have we a right to use valuable man power in needless activities.

No Waiting in the Dark

Most of our customers already are changing their own fuses. They have been doing it because they preferred to. Here's why:

If you blow an electric fuse, and call us to fix it for you, you are forced to wait a half hour or longer—perhaps in darkness—until our service man can get to your home. If you change your own fuse, your service will be restored in a few minutes.

Fill In the Postal Card

There's nothing difficult or complicated about changing fuses. All you need to do is to learn how and we want to show you how—right in your own home. A return postal card is enclosed with your current electric bill, June 8-July 6. Just fill in your name and address and drop it in the mail. A representative of the Georgia Power Company will call on you and give you a personal demonstration of how to change fuses.

Help us to conserve for war production. Learn how to change your own fuses and save yourself the 75-cent charge which will go into effect July 15. Let our representative show you how easy and simple it is.

The Army and Navy in Georgia

Have you been wondering what the blue and white soldiers' sleeve insignia are for? They didn't come into being until last year, Colonel William F. Riter, acting Fourth Corps Area quartermaster, explained yesterday, and the insignia is that of the Fourth Corps Area Service Command.

The insignia was supplied for shirt sleeves when countless soldiers came within Army regulations governing summer dress just a few weeks ago.

Regulations provide that the insignia be worn on the outer garment, and it is worn with the winter uniform on both the sleeve of the blouse and the overcoat, but not the shirt sleeve.

Then the insignia was authorized to be worn on the sleeve of the khaki shirt when hot weather came.

The insignia is a chamfered white square with concave sides on a dark blue disk background 2 3/4 inches in diameter. Colonel Riter explained that white, being a mixture of all colors, was selected for the reason that the Fourth Corps Area Service Command may be composed of all arms and services. It is worn with one of the chamfers at the top, centering on the left sleeve with the top of the blue disc one-half inch below the shoulder seam of the garment on which it is worn.

"The insignia is part of the uniform of the administrative personnel, permanently assigned to the Fourth Corps Area headquarters, or the overhead personnel at camps and stations," said Colonel Riter. "Troops from other corps area service commands coming into this area for a limited time—as an example, to remain only during their training period—wear the insignia of their own area. The insignia is issued to the enlisted men and non-commissioned officers and is purchased by the officers."

Associate Justice Begins Routine Today in Tough Organization.

FORT BENNING, Ga., June 15. (AP)—Associate Justice Frank Murphy looked around this infantry post today and got a glimpse of the routine he will follow for the next month in the "toughest organization" in the country.

The supreme court justice will get up at 5:30 a. m. daily, starting tomorrow, have breakfast at 6 a. m. and be in school at 7:15. He will take the division commander's course and at the end of four weeks will go on maneuvers.

After completing his training here, he is expected to be assigned to the office of the chief of staff, General George C. Marshall.

Sworn in yesterday as a lieutenant colonel, the justice spent the first part of today in filling out forms and records and then met Brigadier General Leven C. Allen, commander of the infantry school. He made a tour of the post this afternoon.

Justice Murphy said he had been trying to get into training since December 7. He added that he particularly wanted to get into the infantry because "it is the toughest organization in the country."

During the first World War he held the rank of captain and was adjutant of the 39th Infantry of the Fourth Division. He served in France and at the time the Armistice was signed was promoted to major.

NEW ORLEANS, June 15.—(AP)—A wartime mystery of the sea was revealed today in the strange disappearance of the New Orleans freighter Miraflores of the Standard Fruit & Steamship Company, unreported since February 15 when last sighted off the coast of Haiti.

The vessel, of 2,158 gross tons and 270 feet long, sailed from here February 6 with her crew of 34 on a routine voyage to Haiti before the Axis submarine campaign extended to menacing proportions in the area.

The Miraflores was due to return here February 19, but under a last-minute change in schedule left Haiti February 14 with New York as her destination. She was sighted the next day proceeding on her course off Haiti and has been unreported since.

The missing Miraflores recalled to shipping circles the unsolved mystery of the Cyclops, a United States Navy collier which disappeared in 1918 during World War I en route from Brazil to the United States with a cargo of manganese. No trace of ship or crew has ever been found.

Captain Robert Thompson, one of four New Orleans men on the Miraflores, was master of the vessel.

Miss Wouters Tells of Life In Holland After Invasion

By SALLY FORTH.

ONE OF THE MOST inspired workers in the Nurses' Aide unit of the Atlanta Red Cross chapter is Wilma Wouters, who came to the United States from Holland five months after the Germans invaded that country. Having witnessed the havoc wrought by the soldiers of the "New Order," Wilma is doubly interested in the work being done for the people of the conquered countries.

She came to America with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wouters, and her brother, Fred, and the family has established residence in an apartment at 425 Tenth street.

Foreseeing the invasion of Holland, her family arranged to leave the country, sailing from Genoa on June 2, 1940. But the invasion came sooner than they anticipated, and by the time their sailing date dawned, Holland was occupied by German soldiers, and they were detained for five long months.

According to Wilma, who is an attractive Spanish blonde, practically everything in Holland was rationed after the invasion. Prior to that time, only sales on sugar and gasoline were restricted.

In order to obtain a permit to buy a pair of shoes after the invasion, it was necessary to go before the rationing board and present for the board's inspection one's oldest pair of shoes! The clothing rationing card issued by the Reichstag contained 100 points, and the card had to last for a year. A hundred points in clothing actually amounted to very little, for a dress counted 30 points, a coat counted 70, and stockings counted from 2 to 5 points, depending upon their durability. The people of Holland were allowed to buy no gas—unless they were doctor or engaged in some equally vital service. A doctor, according to Wilma, was allowed only 33 liters of gasoline a month, one liter being about a quarter of a gallon! Holland supplies were speedily confiscated by the Germans, and warehouses were robbed.

In October the Wouters family entrained at Amsterdam for Berlin, prior to leaving Europe. Wilma and Fred are American citizens, so they encountered very little difficulty in obtaining passports. In Berlin, they stayed at the popular Excelsior hotel, and during their brief stay, the famed railroad station, Friedrichstrasse, was bombed. Interesting is Wilma's comment that the food in Germany—even

Miss Stubbs Wed To Sgt. Nation At Post Chapel

The chapel at Fort McPherson formed the setting Sunday afternoon for the marriage of Miss Frances Loraine Stubbs to Sergeant Grady M. Nation, which took place at 5 o'clock. Captain Leslie Newman, post chaplain, officiated, and a musical program was presented by Miss Sarah Nell Cooley and Mrs. H. L. Burdette.

The chancel was banked with palms, before which were placed seven-branched candelabra and an American flag. The altar was adorned with urns of white gladioli and larkspur.

Ushers were Sergeant D. B. Reynolds and Sergeant Vernon Braxton. Miss Lucile Brewer, the maid of honor and only attendant, was gowned in rose beige with white and rose accessories. Her flowers were swainsona and Joanna Hill roses.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Stubbs, was given in marriage by her father. They met the groom and his best man, Sergeant Edward Catchings, at the altar. The bride was beautifully gowned in aqua crepe, worn with white accessories. Her flowers were purple-throated orchids and lilies of the valley.

The couple left for a wedding trip to the mountains and they will reside at 1690 Bankhead avenue, Northwest.

Mrs. Stubbs was gowned in blue crepe with white accessories and talisman roses and stephanotis. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Nation. His mother wore a model of navy blue with white accessories. Her flowers were talisman roses and stephanotis.

MISS BARBARA BROWN, OF NEW YORK.

New York Belle Is Betrothed To Ensign Charles P. Stetson

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y., June 15.—Of interest to fashionable society throughout the east and south is the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. George Estabrook Brown, of 1172 Park avenue, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Barbara Brown, to Ensign Charles Pate Stetson, U. S. N. R., son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene W. Stetson, of 117 East Seventy-second street and Greens Farms, Conn., who are natives of Macon, Georgia.

Miss Brown graduated from the Brearley school and made her debut in 1940 at a tea given by her parents. She is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Irwin N. Megargee, of Philadelphia and Ardmore, Pa., and of the late Mr. and Mrs. John A. S. Brown, also of Philadelphia.

The lovely bride-to-be is the sister of Miss Miriam Harriett Brown, Neter Megargee Brown, who is a junior at Yale, and of Ensign George Estabrook Brown Jr., U. S. N. R., now in the submarine service. Mrs. Percival E.

Foerderer, of Bryn Mawr, and Mrs. John O. MacIntosh, of Queen Lane, Philadelphia, are her aunts. Her father is a general partner of Jenks, Kirkland & Co., of Philadelphia, and a member of the New York Stock Exchange.

Ensign Stetson was graduated from the Choate school at Wallingford, Conn., and in June from the Sheffield Scientific school of Yale University, where he was a member of Saint Anthony Hall. Upon completion of further studies at Yale he will be assigned to active duty.

His sisters are Mrs. Robert P. Hatcher, of Kewanee, Ill., and Miss Iola Stetson, Eugene W. Stetson Jr. and Private Basil Wise Stetson, U. S. A., are his brothers. His father is president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, and his mother is the former Miss Iola Wise, of Macon.

Girl Scout Camp Is Announced

A special appeal is made for volunteer workers for the Girl Scout Day Camp beginning yesterday and continuing through August 8 at North Fulton park.

The day camp is an interesting project of this year's Atlanta Girl Scout Council and extends through two sessions. The first of these is June 15 through July 11, and the second is July 13 through August 8. The schedule of the day camp is as follows: Girl Scout day campers 10 years old and over will attend on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays of each week, while the younger girls, 7 to 10 years of age, will go to the park on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Mrs. J. C. Harris is director for the Monday, Wednesday and Friday group, and Mrs. R. B. Armistead for the Tuesday and Thursday attendants. Mrs. Frank Quentin is also a director of the day camp of the Atlanta Girl Scout Council.

The other members of the staff are volunteer leaders drawn from the Girl Scout volunteer leaders, the Red Cross and Civilian Defense Volunteer Office files. Volunteers have been placed already as business managers, first aid expert and camp counselor. Others are needed to teach arts and crafts, emergency cooking and participation in such sports as badminton and archery.

For those who are interested in participation in this program a three-day training course will be given June 9, 10 and 11. The first day's instruction will take place Tuesday at the Girl Scout offices at Rich's. The Wednesday and Thursday training course objectives will be explained at North Fulton park, the site of the day camp. Those who wish to take part may call Mrs. Harris or Mrs. Armistead at Walnut 9110 and make an appointment to discuss this work.

Girls interested in attending the day camp are informed that the first session June 15 through July 11 is already filled and applications for the second session July 13 through August 8 are being received rapidly.

Man Owes Fiancee the Truth About His Former Marriage

By Dixie George.

I am engaged to marry a man who lives in a nearby state. I love him very much. I do not know much about his family except that he has been married, divorced and has a five-year-old son, cared for by his people. He did not tell me this, for he would never talk of his past. I think he thought I knew this I would not marry him, because I once said I would not marry anyone who had been divorced. I am sorry I said it, and would marry him and make a home for his son if he asked me. A short time ago he came to see me and I heard from him the same week. I have not heard from him nor seen him since. Must I get in touch with him or wait until he comes back?

BROKENHEARTED.

Wait and let him make the next move. I do not think that he has proved to be a very sincere or dependable person, and those two qualities are very important in a husband. In the first place, if you had gone so far as to become engaged to him, you should have investigated his background and found out if he had been married. His refusal to discuss his past should have made you suspicious of him anyway. I think that it is far better for you to have found out now than after you married. I would suggest that the next time you see him, to ask him about his child. I think that it is his place to write you and see you again. I am sure he knows you love him, and since it is not your place to do the pursuing, he will get in touch with you again. Do not take his little lapses of silence too seriously. Perhaps there is nothing wrong and he is just in one of those moods. A lot of men act that way, and they mean nothing by it, so just sit steady in the boat and if he is the right one for you he will come back.

PLANS FOR OPEN HOUSE

Dear Dixie:
We are moving into a beautiful home soon, and everyone keeps saying, "You will have a housewarming, won't you?" Well this place is being vacated now by the ones who built it, and as we did not build the home, is a housewarming in order, and aren't friends supposed to give it as well as serve?

How must I hold open house? Would that be all right? It really is an estate, so everyone wants to see it after we are moved. We are not trying to put on a show, by any means, but something that will let our friends know we do want them to come out.

HOSTESS.

A housewarming would be all right, but since the house has been lived in before I believe that an open house would be more appropriate. The hosts, or owners, give the housewarming and friends usually come bearing some gift for the new home. Special friends are asked to serve and assist in various capacities.

NEW YORK—Charged with drunken driving when his car ran off the road and struck a pole, and a policeman said he acted "dizzy" and gave off an aroma of alcohol, Daniel Cookes was acquitted in Queens traffic court on this explanation: Ill; he had been to a doctor who prescribed rubbing alcohol on his chest and taking a pill. Cookes said he took two pills instead of one, which accounted for his dizziness, and declared the alcohol on his chest—not in it.

An open house is really just a large tea. Invitations may be sent to friends as follows: "Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith at home, Wednesday the tenth, 8 until 10 o'clock, 375 Broad avenue."

On the other hand, the party could be given without sending out formal invitations. "No invitations are to be issued, but friends are invited to call" is the general way of expressing it. A notice in the newspaper would take care of that, as well as the general knowledge among your friends that you are entertaining. Personally I prefer invitations. They could be made by telephone, if you care to be very informal.

Sandwiches, cakes, mints and some type of drink would be satisfactory for an afternoon party. If the affair is in the evening near the dinner hour, you could serve a buffet supper. Cold meats, salad, rolls, coffee, and a dessert. An evening party—that is, after the dinner hour—simple refreshments should be served, similar to the afternoon tea. Of course, if you have cocktails appropriate menus should be planned. No sandwiches, but a variety of snacks, cheese, pickles, d'oeuvres. It would be nice to have some of your friends assist.

MY DAY: A Tribute To Men On Merchant Ships

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Sunday—Friday afternoon we had a party for some of the soldiers stationed in Washington. The President greeted them, the Army band played and then they had some refreshments. A chorus, organized by Donald Murray, and members of the United Federal Workers Union, sang some of their own songs and we found that there was plenty of talent among the soldiers.

One of their number played the piano to steady the singing and led at the end. I was really sorry when it was over, because I enjoyed having them and look forward now to another party in the near future.

Yesterday morning, the President and I greeted the British and American boys, whom the Treasury Department is sponsoring on a trip around the country. The secretary of the treasury came back from the country to be with them and the British ambassador joined us on the porch. I don't believe they enjoyed the photographing any more than they have enjoyed some of their experiences.

However, they must be a great inspiration to some of the people who greet them in different parts of the country. These boys are a symbol of the unity which exists between Britain and the United States in the fight for freedom. I hope that, before long, we shall have added to their number boys from China and Russia, because in this fight no one carries the burden alone.

It is a joint burden and will continue to be in the future. Such honors as we pay individual heroes are really only a symbol of what is due to heroic youth throughout the world. We should not only honor the representatives of the nations which are fighting together today, but also those who represent the other United Nations for they continue to fight in every way which is possible in spite of the occupation of their home territory.

As one reads of the many merchant ships which have been sunk, I wonder if there should not be some special medal of honor for the men who man these ships. In some cases they run even greater risks than the boys in the regular Army and Navy. When we realize that, over and over again, they land from one torpedoed ship and as soon as they recover from wounds or exposure, they start out on another trip, we can hardly fail to pay homage for supreme courage.

Last night we saw a moving picture, "Mrs. Miniver." Because everybody had spoken so highly of it, I was rather prepared for disappointment. Instead, it is better than I imagined possible—a sermon, and a charming and beautiful one.

January 20 and February 18 (AQUARIUS)—This is not a favorable time for important plans, decisions or changes, but is slightly favorable for attention to minor matters, especially those things which are arduous and are of a serious nature.

February 19 and March 20 (PISCES)—If you are filled with moods and encounter those who are grouchy or melancholy, don't think it will be permanent. The influences are dominating throughout the entire day are apt to suppress optimism and bring forth irritation and dissatisfaction.

Suggestions For Teaching A Child To Like Milk

By Dr. William Brady.

Conscious of my own antipathy for mashed potato (excuse me while I shudder) I must concede some individuals cannot take milk. But only those who are actually allergic to milk belong in that category. Nine out of ten who think they do not like milk are missing a boon to health and nutrition, in my opinion. Now don't retort that I'm missing a boon to health and nutrition when I worry about without mashed potato. Nothing about mashing 'em that changes the value of potato in the diet, and I go for French fried potatoes if they're genuine, or German fried, or home fried, or scalloped, or roasted potato if there is pork gravy to go with it.

Children who are finicky about drinking milk often become keen about it if someone who likes milk contrives to start a good-natured competition in drinking milk, with some reward for a good record. Of course, this doesn't work well unless the adult is really fond of milk and takes it in preference to tea or coffee when the child is at table.

Mrs. H. W. G. writes that she became impressed by my writings on the health and nutritional value of milk. She was 31 years old before she could take any milk at all. Her mother had tried countless methods to persuade her to drink milk, but never with any success. At the age of 22 her aunt consoled her by boasting of her own fine health and the aunt never could take milk either. But the aunt nevertheless died at 48.

Now this is how Mrs. G. learned to agree with milk. She left off all attempts for two weeks. Then she began taking a tablespoonful of milk daily, followed by water. After three days she increased the daily dose of milk to three table-spoons, always followed by a drink of water. After a week she increased the daily dose of milk to a wineglassful or slightly more, kept that up for two weeks. Then she took as much as half of an ordinary glassful of milk daily for two or three weeks more. By that time it became easy for her to weigh more.

Today's Charm Tip.
Don't assume that all the talk and advice you hear about walking is meant for some other person. It's you and you and your advice is directed at, with its promised benefits of health and vitality.

Uncle Sam Puts a Ceiling On Weight of W. A. A. C.'s

By Ida Jean Kain

What do you think Uncle Sam's first move was when congress got around to deciding in favor of a feminine army? Why, he promptly put a ceiling on weight. If you tip the beam at higher than the standard weight chart allowance for your height—and age—you can't get into this new Women's Auxiliary Army Corps. But Uncle Sam is pretty broad-minded. As you get into the 21 plus stages you are allowed to weigh more.

At the age of 21 you are supposed to weigh around 105 pounds for a height of five feet; from 21 to 25 you can weigh 114 pounds for the same height; from 26 to 30, you can go on up to 117 pounds; from 31 to 35, you are allowed to reach 120 pounds; from 26 to 40, a weight of 123 pounds; and from 41 to 45 you can hit 123 to 126 pounds top. The scale goes up to a maximum of about 171 pounds for women six feet tall.

But regardless of age, the best women soldiers will be the ones who hold their normal weight. Whatever you are entitled to weigh at 30 is your best weight from then on.

You can see that weight has nothing to do with age. Your bones do not weigh more as you grow older. Neither do your organs. Any increase in weight is simply in fatty tissue and so much extra burden.

Your normal weight really depends on your structure. With a stocky frame you can weigh more than with a slight frame. Therefore, a woman of five feet five inches can weigh up to 135 pounds and be normal weight. With a very large frame, she could weigh as much as 148 pounds for normal. The variation in structure changes the weight figure.

Start your figuring on the basis of a height of five feet and give yourself 100 pounds, 105 pounds, 110 pounds, and 120 pounds for a slight, medium, stocky, or a very large frame. Then, if you have an exceptionally large frame, you can get away with a bit extra.

For each inch over five feet, you

WHAT STORIES THESE MUGS COULD TELL...

Imagine the things they must have heard—standing on the shelf while barber-shop gossip turned the course of history! Wonderful reminders of the red plush era... a collector's collection of shaving mugs that were actually used by the world's famous men! Many have the names still on them—others are marked with lodge emblems! We suggest them for the Dad with a sense of humor or a yen for novel things. From 1.98 to 8.98, this one—7.50

MISS LUCILE DENNISON.

Miss Lucile Dennison To Wed Lt. Jere Wells Jr. on Saturday

Prominent among today's betrothal announcements is that made by Mr. and Mrs. Hubert E. Dennison of their daughter, Miss Lucile Dennison, to Lieutenant Jere A. Wells Jr., of Atlanta and Shaw Field, S. C. The marriage of the popular young couple will be an event of Saturday afternoon, June 20, taking place at 5:30 o'clock in the chapel at Emory University.

Rev. Charles E. Wood, pastor of St. James church in Marietta, will officiate in the presence of the immediate families.

The lovely bride-elect will be given in marriage by her father. Her only attendant will be her sister, Miss Jean Dennison. Tom R. Freeman will act as the groom-elect's best man. The ushers will be David Dennison and George F. Wells.

Miss Dennison was graduated from Agnes Scott College and attended Emory University. She was associated with the National Youth Administration in Marietta for two years, and for the past six months has been industrial secretary of the Y. W. C. A., in Durham, N. C. She is the sister of Misses Jean and Dianne Dennison and of David Dennison.

Lieutenant Wells is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jere A. Wells. He is a graduate of Emory University and a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. He is a first lieutenant in the Army Air Corps having received his wings in 1941 at Gunter Field. At present he is stationed at Shaw Field in Sumter, S. C., where he is an instructor in the Basic Training school. He is the brother of Misses Elena and Carolyn Wells and Bob and George F. Wells.

Ramsden-Stivers Wedding Planned

Of interest is the announcement of the plans for the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Ramsden and Frank Orton Stivers, which will take place at St. Philip's Cathedral on June 27 at 5:30 o'clock. Dean Raimundo de Oviés will read the marriage vows and William P. Ramsden will give his sister in marriage.

The bride-elect has chosen Mrs. Kirby Lominack as her matron of honor and bridesmaids will be Miss Minerva Stivers, of Tulsa, Okla., sister of the bridegroom-elect, and Mrs. Douglas Edwards, of Atlanta.

Joseph A. Stivers, of Tulsa, will be his brother's best man, and groomsmen-ushers will be Robert McGill, John Williams, A. C. Nelson and William A. Morse.

Among the entertainments being planned for the wedding party is a buffet supper to be given by Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Nelson at their home on Longwood drive on Saturday evening, June 20. Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Stivers, of Tulsa, parents of the bridegroom-elect, will be hosts to the wedding party at a dinner on the evening of the wedding rehearsal, June 26. Following the rehearsal, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. McCrary, cousins of the bride-elect, will entertain at an informal reception.

Mrs. Franks Hostess.

Mrs. Minor S. Franks, newly elected regent of the Baron DeKalb Chapter, D. A. R., entertained recently at luncheon, honoring the new officers and past regents of the chapter.

Mrs. Franks was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. L. E. Gillespie. Her guests were Mesdames Henry Newton, H. B. Carver, Miss Frances Burgess, J. E. Carmack, W. P. Smith, Sr., W. W. Barron, W. E. Binford, R. Paine, James Webb, Curtis Thompson, Phillip Davidson, H. R. Evans, Sam Cartledge, J. B. Green, Carl Hudgins, Eliza Earlbman, Walter Estes, John Montgomery, A. L. Wade, W. M. Underwood and Miss Frances Burgess.

Miss Eloise Weeks And W. C. Gibson Wed at Church

Miss Eloise Weeks became the bride of William Claude Gibson Jr. at a ceremony taking place Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the First Baptist church. Dr. Ellis A. Fuller officiated. The music was presented by Mrs. James Gibson, pianist; Anna Clarke Curtis, violinist; Dorothy Weathers and Charles Hammond, soloists.

Bankings of palms were interspersed with baskets of white gladioli and feverfew, and cathedral candelabra holding lighted white candles formed the altar decorations.

Robert Patterson, of Griffin, was best man and the groomsmen included Mac McCarty, Walter McGee, of Albany; Harold Gibson, cousin of the groom, and Richard Weeks, the bride's nephew, of Gainesville. James Gibson, brother of the groom, of Griffin, and Stanley Sales, of Jacksonville, Fla., were the ushers.

Miss Mary Lou Bush was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Misses Melba Hall, Virginia Buhman and Virginia Plunkett, cousin of the bride, of Savannah. Miss Doris Gibson, sister of the groom, was the junior bridesmaid. The attendants were gowned alike in green marquisette, the full skirts having been trimmed with ruffles caught in the center with velvet bows. They wore coronets of matching marquisette ruffles and carried bouquets of summer flowers. Gifts from the bride were strands of pearls, which they wore as their only ornaments.

The flower girl, little Miss Betty Jean Weeks, niece of the bride, was gowned like the other attendants and carried a basket of rose petals.

Preston B. Weeks gave his lovely daughter in marriage. She was attired in a handsome gown of white satin and lace fashioned on princess lines. Her veil of real lace was caught to a coronet of orange blossoms. The veil was worn by Mrs. Preston B. Weeks Jr., of Gainesville, at her marriage to the bride's brother. The bride carried a shower bouquet of white summer flowers centered with white orchids.

Mrs. Preston B. Weeks, the bride's mother, wore a gown of lace-trimmed black chiffon and her flowers were pink rosebuds. Mrs. W. C. Gibson, mother of the groom, wore a model of rose chiffon and her flowers were yellow roses and blue delphinium.

Misses Margaret Wise, Laura Durant, Eugenia Bridges, Wilene Marchman, Lucile Franklin, Laura Ella Gantt and Mrs. Arthur Smith assisted in entertaining at the reception given by the bride's parents at their home on Juniper street.

The couple left for a wedding trip to Jacksonville, Fla., after which they will be home at 283 Murray Hill avenue. The bride traveled in a jacket ensemble of black marquisette trimmed in white and her hat and other accessories were white. A spray of white orchids adorned her left shoulder.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. James Gibson, Mrs. H. M. Amos, Miss Elena Amos, of Griffin; Staff Sergeant and Mrs. John Henderson, of Maxwell Field, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. Preston B. Weeks Jr., of Gainesville; Mr. and Mrs. Walter McGee, of Albany; Miss Dorothy Plunkett and Roy Plunkett, of Unadilla.

Mr. and Mrs. Hagood Clarke Jr. announce the birth of a son, Hagood III, on June 14 at Piedmont hospital. Mrs. Clarke is the former Miss Anne Hurt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Hurt Jr., of Miami Beach, Fla. The baby's paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Hagood Clarke, of this city.

Ensign and Mrs. Thomas C. Mason announce the birth of a son, Walter William, on June 3 at Telfair hospital, Savannah. Mrs. Mason is the former Miss Cecile Mahany, daughter of Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. W. W. Mahany, of Savannah. Ensign Mason is son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion B. Mason, of Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Kimsey York announce the birth of a daughter, John Kimsey Jr., on June 14 at Piedmont hospital. Mrs. York is the former Miss Mary Emeline Mitchell.

Mr. and Mrs. Mack Johnson announce the birth of a daughter on June 10 at Crawford Long hospital, who has been named Dorothy Marie. Mrs. Johnson is the former Miss Marie Fields, of Atlanta.

Garden Division To Meet Today.

The garden division of the Atlanta Woman's Club meets at 10:30 o'clock today at the club. Mrs. O. J. Willoughby is chairman of the division. Mrs. A. B. Lee, president of the Decatur Woman's Club, will be guest speaker.

Altar Society Party.

The Altar Society and the Holy Name Society of the Sacred Heart church will sponsor an entertainment this evening at 8 o'clock at the Knights of Columbus Club. Anyone desiring reservations may call Mrs. Stephens Mitchell, Hemlock 5628-W, or Mrs. Robert Henry, Vernon 1002.

NEW YORK, June 15.—(AP)—Late bids for air transports steadied the stock market after considerable early hesitancy.

The list shifted in irregular fractions at the start. Selective improvement cropped up in the wake of the flurry in the aviation. Gold mine issues also were given a last-minute push.

Closing advances of fractions to a point or more were well distributed although many leaders were about even to a shade under water.

A little short covering and new buying in the tail-end of the session was attributed partly to the belief that the market might be interrupted by last week's profit-taking. The war news provided nothing much in the way of bullish incentives.

Moderately revived demand for peace-time favorites and other stocks, was based largely on what they referred to as the long-pull market rather than any idea the quick fix would come to a

Bonds were mixed and commodities shaky. Tilling forward Gas of Baltimore, up; Consolidated American Gas, Humble Oil, Sherwin Williams and N. J. Zinc.

'Bugs' Baer Says:

Not to be outdone in oriental courtesy the Japs are now doing a bit of honorable remembering.

We touched them up on the sides a bit in the Coral sea and at Midway. And don't forget to remember that it was one of our fliers who changed, "Too little and too late" to "Doolittle and on the dot."

Of course, that last gag is what Thackeray called cab wit. That's the wisecracks you think of on your way home.

But a gag is like chewing gum. You have to get rid of it some time.
